First Class freight rates apply to typesetting machinery shipped "set up." There is a considerable difference between the First Class freight rate and the rate charged for machinery shipped "knocked-down" (K.D.). In order for machinery to be properly classified for freight rate purposes as "knocked-down" (K.D.), it is necessary that the machine box or crate be of a cubic dimension at least one third less than the cubic dimension obtained by multiplying the length times the width times the height of the machine as set up for operation. No machine of our manufacture is boxed to meet this "K.D." requirement.
